Hi Jill,

When you're racing for a sales touchdown, it helps to have a plan—especially when you're kicking off the New Year with a whole new game plan that will hopefully take you all the way. But before you can kiss the ring, you need to get those shoppers in your door... and hey, why not start with those who might be skipping the Big Game?

Get consumers to your website or in your door with Experian. Using data and analytics, we can help you create a more complete picture of your customer to gain a greater understanding of them—then, you can build customized messaging that speaks directly to them. This makes for a stronger connection between you and your audience, resulting in a retail touchdown.
